

SEASONAL EMPLOYMENT NOTICE

Under Section 108.02(15)(k)19 of the Wisconsin Unemployment Insurance Law, your employer has been designated a SEASONAL employer by the Department of Workforce Development - Unemployment Insurance (UI) Division.

This means that you might not be able to use work performed for the SEASONAL employer to qualify for unemployment benefits. Your employer is required to provide this notice of potential ineligibility before you begin work with the SEASONAL employer.

You may QUALIFY for unemployment insurance benefits based on your work for the SEASONAL employer if:

1. You are employed at least 90 days.

This means that at least 90 days must elapse from your first day to your last day with the SEASONAL employer. You do not have to work 90 days during your employment, but the 90-day period must be during the employer's "season."

OR

2. You earn $500.00 from other employers.

The $500 must be earned during the base period and may be earned from one or more covered employers.

OR

3. The employer's designation as a SEASONAL employer changes.
